The East Multnomah Soil and Water Conservation District provides urban and rural residents of East Multnomah County with incredible educational, technical, and financial assistance to care for soil and water.

In an era of increasingly chaotic weather, equitable actions to ensure access to clean water and healthy soil are essential to community resiliency.

As your At Large 2 director I voted to support the city of Gresham's effort to purchase the Shaull Woods, a future park near the headwaters of Fairview Creek in a community with one of the lowest rates of tree canopy cover in our district. I also support emerging initiatives that create opportunities for experienced farmers from historically marginalized communities to access farmland. These efforts, combined with the larger work of the district ensure that benefits of clean water and healthy soil – climate resiliency, strong salmon runs, access to local food, financial savings for farmers and land managers, and more – will be available for current and future generations.
