★ Portland Art Museum Event - Black Artists of Oregon \(All \)

- What: Considering both the presence and absence of Black artists is critical to understanding the breadth of Black artistic production in Oregon—even in the midst of historic exclusion—as well as how the impact of that history affects our understanding of American art history and the history of the Pacific Northwest. This exhibition serves to deepen our awareness of the talented artists who have shaped and inspired artists regionally and nationally, and it will be the first of its kind to consider the work of Black artists collectively in Oregon.
- “An intergenerational exhibit featuring 67 Black artists all cut from remarkably unique cloths, creating a metaphorical (or spiritual) quilt that is as diverse as it is dynamic as it is impactful as it is stunning.”
Brianna Wheeler, Willamette Week.
“Walking through Black Artists of Oregon, the ambitious exhibition currently on display at the Portland Art Museum, it’s impossible not to be impressed by the range and power of the work”
Kristi Turnquist, The Oregonian
