Executive Summary

One of the key components for supervision of pre-adjudicated, at risk youth is to allow for qualified youth to remain at home or in community placements while awaiting court processing. The Community Monitoring Program (CMP) provides supervision and support while reserving the use of costly detention bed spaces for higher risk youth. The research published by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP) shows that detaining low risk offending youth makes it more likely they will re-offend after they return to the community.

Program Summary

This program serves as an immediate sanction for youth who have gone to court and need additional support to assure compliance with probation. This program serves approximately 250 youth annually. CMP is comprised of four levels of supervision. All youth start out being placed on the highest level and are reduced in their level of supervision based on their performance.

While on CMP, each youth must make several daily phone calls to the CMP office for required check-ins. CMP staff conduct face to face visits at home, school and place of employment (referred to as field visits) to assure program compliance and that conditions of release are being followed. Field visits are random and are conducted 7 days a week, 365 days a year. Each youth is reviewed weekly by the team to measure client compliance. The goal of the program is for each youth to comply with the court ordered release conditions and successfully complete the program.

Multnomah County Juvenile Services Division (JSD) is a national model site for Juvenile Detention Alternatives Initiative (JDAI). JDAI's success is dependent on having detention alternative programs which use the least restrictive means for youth who are involved in the court process. Without a range of alternatives to detention, Multnomah County JSD would detain nearly 250 additional youth per year.
