Serving
Public
Safety
Agencies in Multnomah County

The Department of Community Justice received a grant to fund a limited-duration project manager to guide the implementation planning and implementation phases of the gang assessment.

The August 2014 Trends Report shows a slight increase in part 1 crimes from a year ago and a slight decrease in bookings.

Abbey Stamp introduced Portland State University student Kaysey Crump, who is working towards her Administrative Social Work degree and is interning at the Independent Police Review.

Criminal Justice Commission: Regional Implementation Council Report on Statewide Prison Use

Craig Prins, Executive Director of the Oregon Criminal Justice Commission, gave an update on the Justice Reinvestment House Bill. See the CJC RIC Statewide Prison Use Presentation for more detail. The statewide prison forecast shows no growth for at least the next five years.

The first half of the presentation reviewed the two year comparison of statewide prison use, which includes prison intakes for first sentences, prison intakes for probation revocations (second sentences), lengths of stay, sentence types, and short term transitional leave releases. The second half of the presentation reviewed a two year comparison of Multnomah County prison use.

Racial and Ethnic Disparities (RED) Capstone Project

The LPSCC Disproportionate Minority Contact (DMC) Subcommittee will now be referred to as LPSCC Racial and Ethnic Disparities (RED) Subcommittee.

In July, a team of nine went to Washington DC for Georgetown's Center for Juvenile Justice Reform. The team consisted of:

- Lorena Campbell, Intergovernmental Liaison for East Multnomah County School Districts
- Brian Detman, Policy Advisor/DMC Coordinator, Multnomah County Department of Community Justice
- Tashia Hager, Lieutenant, Portland Police Bureau
- Joe McFerrin, CEO/President, Portland Opportunities Industrialization Center (POIC)
- Judge Maureen McKnight, Multnomah County Circuit Court Judge
- Christina McMahan, Director, Multnomah County Juvenile Services Division
- Carmen Rubio, Executive Director of Latino Network
- Commissioner Judy Shiprack, Multnomah County District 3, and LPSCC Executive Committee Co-Chair
- Charlene Woods, Chief Deputy District Attorney, Multnomah County District Attorney's Office

The team is tasked with creating and implementing a capstone project aimed at reducing racial and ethnic disparities. Christina McMahan, DCJ Juvenile Services Division Director and Brian Detman, DCJ Policy Advisor, talked about the principles, values, and strategies guiding the project. See the Racial and Ethnic Disparities Multco Team Capstone Project presentation for more information. The team believes there is opportunity to impact racial and ethnic disparities among the group of youth who receive warning letter interventions. The pilot project is being finalized and implementation will begin January 2015.

Restitution Discussion

For more information about the Restitution Discussion, see the Restitution Presentations.

Caroline Wong of the DA's Office provided the definition of Restitution, Economic Damages, and Victim. There is a constitutional and statutory right to restitution. Multnomah County has completed a restitution recovery pilot project, which was a collaborative effort of the DA's Office, the Department of Justice, the Department of Community Justice (DCJ), National Crime Victims Law Institute, and Multnomah County Circuit Courts to have more restitution ordered and collected on behalf of victims. Post-conviction, it is difficult to enforce the payment of restitution.

Scott Taylor, Director of DCJ, gave an overview of DCJ's role and how restitution is paid. It was noted that when offenders have financial obligations to the state in addition to a restitution order, the funds from payments are shared evenly between the victims and the State. When restitution collection is turned over to a collections agency, additional collection fees are charged. DCJ is currently designing a program for adults similar to the Project Payback program that provides opportunities—such as supervised work crews--for youth to pay their restitution.

Doug Bray, Court Administrator, provided information about the levels of financial obligations in criminal actions and why the restitution dollars get divided. Currently, there are system issues because parole officers cannot see client restitution payment history in the new IT system.
