Program Description

As the Community Mental Health Program (CMHP), the County is obligated to perform various duties related to involuntary mental health treatment.

The Involuntary Commitment Program (ICP) is required to investigate and make recommendations to the court anytime an individual is involuntarily detained for mental health treatment. When a hearing is recommended, the county is required to submit a hearing report and provide a certified mental health examiner to assist in the evaluation of the person with an alleged mental illness. ICP employs certified commitment investigators to evaluate involuntarily detained individuals in hospitals. These individuals are alleged to be a danger to self/others or unable to provide for their basic personal needs due to a mental disorder.

The Oregon Health Authority also delegates the responsibility for the assignment and placement of civilly committed individuals to the CMHP. When a person is civilly committed they are assigned a commitment monitor who oversees their care and treatment. Commitment monitors meet with all committed patients in Multnomah County at various commitment sites to routinely assess mental status and progress towards discharge, and collaborate with inpatient and outpatient providers plus significant others to create treatment and support in the least restrictive environments.

When a civilly committed person is discharged to the community while remaining under committed status this is called a trial visit. When a person under civil commitment is released on trial visit or with other conditions made by the court, they are assigned a trial visit monitor who supports the individuals on conditional release to access care and remain safe in the community.

For every person placed under commitment or trial visit, a monitor conducts at minimum twice weekly visits to those in hospital settings under civil commitment, weekly visits to those in subacute care under civil commitment. These commitment services promote resilience, safety, and recovery in the community while reducing the need for unnecessary hospital interventions. Services apply an equity lens, utilizing culturally specific positions and culturally responsive ideals to protect the civil rights of vulnerable individuals and enhance outcomes for those individuals.
