Executive Summary

Residential drug treatment is an essential part of the alcohol and drug treatment continuum that impacts public safety. When residential treatment is successful for offenders, the long-term collateral costs of re-arrest, re-incarceration and inadvertent consequences for the children of offenders significantly decline.

Program Summary

This offer supports 130 beds of residential drug and alcohol treatment for high risk male and female offenders and allows courts and probation/parole officers to have sanction options other than jail for those needing treatment. Fifty-two beds serve high risk offenders in a facility specialized in treating males involved with the criminal justice system. The remaining beds for men are located in three residential facilities within the community. Some of these beds are reserved for specific populations (e.g., sex offenders, East County property offenders). This program also provides 40 residential alcohol and drug treatment beds for high risk female offenders in two facilities and nine beds for dependent children. The current community treatment providers have been in existence for over 20 years and work collaboratively with the Department of Community Justice (DCJ) to treat offenders with addictions and criminality.

The program uses evidence-based practices to address addiction, mental health issues, parenting skills, healthy relationship dynamics, criminality, employment resources and relapse prevention counseling. Regular communication and coordination with a Parole/Probation Officer (PPO) is maintained to develop and implement treatment and supervision plans.

With the expansion of Medicaid and private forms of insurance, some clinical services previously supported by the DCJ budget will now be reimbursed through health insurance. DCJ will continue to provide funding for clinical services for those offenders eligible for treatment who do not have insurance. In addition, funding is provided to support room and board costs not covered by Medicaid for all DCJ clients served by contracted services.

The National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) reports that drug abuse treatment is cost effective in reducing drug use and bringing about cost savings associated with health care, crime and incarceration. NIDA also reports that gender-specific programs may be more effective for female offenders, especially those with trauma and abuse in their background (2006).
