Executive Summary

Residential drug treatment is an essential part of the alcohol and drug treatment continuum that impacts public safety. The long-term collateral costs of re-arrest, re-incarceration, and inadvertent consequences for children of justice-involved adults significantly decline when individuals are successful in residential treatment.

Program Summary

This program supports residential drug and alcohol treatment for high risk adults and provides sanction options other than jail for individuals needing treatment. Fifty-four (50) beds serve high risk adults in a facility specialized in treating males involved with the criminal justice system. The remaining beds for men are located in three residential facilities within the community. Some of these beds are reserved for specific populations (e.g., justice-involved adults convicted of sex crimes, East County property offenses). This program also provides 29 residential alcohol and drug treatment beds for high risk female adults in two facilities, and four beds for dependent children. The current community treatment providers have been in existence for over 20 years and work collaboratively with the Department of Community Justice (DCJ) to treat adults with addictions and criminality. The program uses evidence-based practices to address addiction, mental health issues, parenting skills, healthy relationship dynamics, criminality, employment resources, and relapse prevention counseling. Regular communication and coordination with a parole-probation officer (PPO) is maintained to develop and implement treatment and supervision plans.

Some clinical services previously supported by DCJ's budget can now be reimbursed by insurance due to the expansion of Medicaid and increased access to private insurance. DCJ will continue to provide funding for clinical services for adults eligible for treatment who do not have insurance. In addition, funding is provided to support room and board costs not covered by Medicaid for all DCJ clients served by contracted providers. The National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA) reports that drug abuse treatment is cost effective in reducing drug use and bringing about cost savings associated with health care, crime and incarceration. NIDA also reports that gender-specific programs may be more effective for female adults, especially those with trauma and abuse in their background (2006).
