Executive Summary

The Department of Community Justice (DCJ) adheres to evidence-based risk principles to determine supervision levels ensuring resources are targeted to the highest risk. Multnomah County receives a large number of high risk individuals and is still able to produce lower recidivism rates for these cases compared to the statewide average. The Reduced Supervision model takes care not to bring individuals who are low risk deeper into the criminal justice system, provides minimal supervision, and encourages increased self-sufficiency.

Program Description

High risk supervision uses evidence-based strategies to identify criminogenic risk factors to supervise high risk individuals on probation and parole. DCJ utilizes the Level of Service/Case Management Inventory (LS/CMI), the Women's Risk Need Assessment (WRNA) and the Public Safety Checklist (PSC) assessment tools to measure the risks and needs of adults. The LS/CMI is also a fully functioning case management tool that provides a summary of the individual's static and dynamic criminogenic risk and need factors, as well as special responsivity considerations to be deployed during supervision. The WRNA is a gender responsive risk assessment created with women's social and psychological needs in mind. The PSC provides a quick, objective, validated assessment of the probability an individual will be re-convicted of a felony or re-arrested for a person or property offense based on specific characteristics.

DCJ uses Effective Practices in Community Supervision (EPICS), an evidence-based case management model. With EPICS, Parole-Probation Officers (PPO) follow a structured approach to their interactions with their clients, allowing PPOs to effectively target the criminogenic needs using cognitive behavioral interventions and skill building for high risk individuals. PPOs also integrate trauma-informed, culturally responsive practices and brain science into their daily work and utilize data to track disparities.

PPOs reinforce law-abiding behavior and link clients to treatment, employment and other services. Supervision is conducted through: a) home and office visits; b) contacts with family; c) correspondence with community members and treatment providers; and d) collaboration with law enforcement agencies.
