Executive Summary

Multnomah County Department of Community Justice (DCJ) High Risk Generic Supervision has been nationally recognized for the use of evidence-based strategies, including the development of a system to identify criminogenic risk factors affiliated with High Risk justice involved adults. Multnomah County receives a greater number of high-risk individuals than any other Oregon county and is still able to produce lower recidivism rates for our cases.

Program Summary

High Risk Supervision uses research-based strategies to supervise high-risk individuals on probation and parole. DCJ utilizes the Level of Service/Case Management Inventory (LS/CMI), The Women's Risk Need Assessment (WRNA) and Public Safety Checklist (PSC) assessment tools to measure the risks and needs of adult. The LS/CMI is also a fully functioning case management tool. The LS/CMI provides a summary of the individual's static and dynamic criminogenic risk and need factors, as well as special responsivity considerations to be deployed during supervision. The WRNA is a gender-responsive risk assessment created with justice women's social and psychological needs in mind. The PSC provides a quick, objective, validated assessment of the probability an individual will be re-convicted of a felony or re-arrested for a person or property offense based on specific characteristics.

DCJ continues to use Effective Practices in Corrections Setting (EPICS) as an evidence-based case management model. With EPICS, Parole/Probation Officers (PPO) follow a structured approach to their interactions with their clients, allowing PPOs to effectively target the criminogenic needs using cognitive behavioral interventions for high risk individuals. PPOs reinforce law-abiding behavior and link clients to treatment, employment and other services. Supervision is conducted through: a) home and office visits; b) contacts with family; c) correspondence with community members and treatment providers; and d) collaboration with law enforcement agencies.

Adult supervision is an essential component of public safety. Nearly all prison inmates return to their county of sentencing upon release, where they must complete post-prison supervision. The risk of these individuals committing new crimes is reduced when evidence-based supervision is in place and monitored. Implementing effective supervision practices has contributed to lower recidivism rates as compared to the Statewide average. Current rates for arrests of any new crime of adults on probation or parole in Multnomah County within one year is 9.2% lower (27.4%) than overall Statewide percentage (37.6%).
