Sequence

The assigned facilities and properties are sequenced into three categories (1 to 3) and two groups (A and B) based on the current county assessment of their need to be restored after a disaster, emergency or other incident. The listing is coded by location to allow for geographical response planning where practical. Essentially, the Multnomah County Department. of Facilities and Property Management (FPM) used Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) guidelines to list the buildings and sites considered most critical to county operations and the public it serves. Building restoration and business continuation priorities will be based largely upon this sequence, but can and will be adjusted according to the nature of the situation and condition of the building.

Category 1: Critical Facilities

Critical facilities are the first county buildings that must be restored to service. Their business operations must resume and continue as soon as possible. This category includes primary health, justice and transportation operations and services.

- Group A: These buildings house operations that need to be in place in order to restore other buildings, roads or bridges. These buildings should be the first facilities restored to service.

- Group B: These buildings support services that operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week, or house critical resources (e.g., vehicle fueling or communication hubs). These buildings house fewer personnel than Category 1-Group A buildings, or have the ability to be self-supporting for some period of time. Correctional complexes may operate independently for up to 36 hours using emergency generators.

Category 2: Key Facilities

Key facilities are the next county buildings that must be restored to service. Their business operations must resume and continue when practical. This category includes administrative facilities and support services.

- Group A: These buildings house administrative personnel who need to return to work after critical buildings are operational.

- Group B: These buildings support services that are administered by personnel housed in the Category2-Group A buildings.

Category 3: Other Facilities

These facilities include all other county buildings and sites.

- Group A: These buildings include branch libraries, storage facilities and smaller-scale county operations.

- Group B: This group includes any other county facilities and properties not previously listed.
