Preschool for All Overview

Voters in Multnomah County overwhelmingly supported “Preschool for All” on Nov. 3, 2020 with 64 percent of voters approving the measure to extend early education to children across the county. Preschool for All (PFA) will give 3 and 4 year olds in Multnomah County access to free, high-quality, developmentally appropriate, culturally responsive preschool experiences.

The Preschool for All Plan reflects more than two years of engagement with community members including parents, educators, culturally specific organizations, policy makers and early childhood specialists and will be the framework for program implementation.

Preschool for All:

- Allows families to choose the type of preschool experience that is right for their child,
- Increases wages and provides professional development for early educators, and
- Invests in coaching and other key supports for preschool providers.

Preschool for All will grow over time, increasing the number of children and families that it serves each year. All families in Multnomah County will be eligible to apply and families who currently have the least access to high-quality preschool will be prioritized for the first-available slots. Children who currently experience barriers to preschool include Black, Indigenous, and all children of color, children whose families live under the Self-Sufficiency Standard and children with developmental delays and disabilities, among others.

PFA Advisory Committee

The Preschool For All ballot measure requires that an Advisory Committee be established to:

- Review program expenditures,
- Advise evaluation efforts,
- Review data and make policy recommendations to the Department of County Human Services, which is responsible for implementing Preschool for All.

In Spring of 2021, Multnomah County Chair Deborah Kafoury will appoint 12-15 group members for the Preschool for All Advisory Committee. These appointments will then be approved by the Multnomah County Board of Commissioners. Geographic and racial diversity will be key considerations for overall group make-up.

Committee Members

PFA Advisory Committee Members will:

- Live or work in Multnomah County.
- Participate for a minimum of two years and be limited to two consecutive terms.
