

Eligible and Ineligible Expenses

Eligible expenses

Seeking reimbursement

For expenses to be eligible for reimbursement, they must:

- A. Be for products or services that treat a medical condition
  - B. Have been incurred by you, your spouse or your eligible dependent
  - C. Be adequately substantiated prior to any run-out period imposed by the plan
  - D. Have been incurred during the permitted plan year or applicable period of coverage
- A medical expense is incurred when the service that causes the expense is provided not when the expense is paid.*

For exact run-out periods imposed by your plan, please reference your Summary Plan Document or ask your employer.

Substantiation requirements

To properly substantiate an eligible medical expense, the claim must include one or more third-party documents that show:

1. The patient receiving care
2. A description of the service or product
3. The provider or vendor's name
4. The date of service or sale
5. The final out-of-pocket expense

Our preferred form of substantiation is an explanation of benefits (EOB) provided by your insurance carrier. It will list the patient, dates of service, billing codes, the dollar amount of patient responsibility and amounts billed to the insurance carrier.

Timing

Run-out considerations

At the end of the plan year, participants are allotted a period of time (decided by the employer) called the "run-out period," during which the participant can submit claims that were incurred during the plan year or applicable period of coverage. At the end of the run-out period, any amounts remaining in the participant's account may be forfeited.

Please see the Summary Plan Document provided by your employer for the exact duration of your run-out period and any exclusions allowed.

Termination considerations

Terminating employment may affect the amount of time available for participants to use their elections. Termination also may limit the run-out period provided.

Please check with your employer or consult your Summary Plan Document for details regarding termination and your health flexible spending account (FSA) and dependent care assistance program (DCAP).

Additional considerations

Depending on your plan, you may have an additional grace period or carryover allowances that will affect the period available for incurring eligible expenses. Please check with your employer or consult your Summary Plan Document for details regarding your health FSA and DCAP.

Potentially eligible expenses

The guidance permitting the use of pretax dollars for medical expenses expressly forbids expenses that are not exclusively for use in mitigating or treating an eligible medical condition. Potentially eligible expenses include products or services that may be used for general health or cosmetic purposes, and must conform to additional substantiation prior to reimbursement under a health FSA. Depending on the type of expense, the additional documentation can be any of the following:

- A. Letter of medical necessity (LOMN)
See benefithelp.solutions.com/pdfs/med\_neccesity\_ltr.pdf.
- B. A prescription
A prescription must include the drug prescribed; who the drug is for; the dosage, quantity and instructions for use; and the medical prescriber's signature.
- C. A cost comparison
A typical cost comparison will be the receipt of the item and a demonstration of the price of a comparable nonspecialized similar product.
- D. An itemized third-party statement including all services

Note: It is important to adhere to the documentation requirements listed in the below table. A prescription does not take the place of a letter of medical necessity because a prescription fails to identify the condition being treated.

Note: Any substantiating document must be valid on the date that your care or service is incurred to be eligible for reimbursement.

Note: Your claim will not be processed until all documentation is received and completed.

Over-the-counter items

On March 27, 2020, the CARES Act, H.R. 748 was signed into law, which among other things, no longer requires over-the-counter (OTC) medicines or drugs to be prescribed by a physician in order to be eligible for reimbursement under a health FSA as of January 1, 2020. Prior to this change, Insulin was the only exception to an ACA provision which required such OTC medicines to be prescribed in order to be eligible.

Over-the-counter (OTC) items that are not drugs or medicine are still reimbursable under a health FSA without a physician's prescription. Examples of OTC items reimbursable without a prescription include sunscreen, bandages, contact lens solution, menstrual products and reading glasses.

IRS Announcement 2021-7

The IRS has ruled that amounts paid for purchasing personal protective equipment (PPE) to mitigate spread of the novel Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) are treated as medical care expenses under §213(d) of the Internal Revenue Code. Examples of COVID-PPE include masks, hand sanitizer and sanitary wipes. As qualified medical expenses, amounts paid for such PPE are eligible to be paid or reimbursed under various health FSAs, HRAs and HSAs.

Stockpiling

OTC items that are not drugs or medicine are restricted to amounts that can be reasonably used within the period of coverage in order to qualify for reimbursement under a health FSA. This means no more than three of any one item can be reimbursed under a health FSA within a single month. First-aid kits are excluded from this allowance — please see first aid kit and supplies for additional guidance.

Ineligible expenses

Expenses that have been labeled as ineligible for reimbursement are those that are usually used for personal, cosmetic or general health purposes. Even if these expenses are accompanied by a letter of medical necessity, the treatments also must be permissible under regulatory provisions.

Note: This eligible and ineligible expense list is meant to be a guide and is not all inclusive.
