Possible Subcommittee Groupings

Below are some potential subcommittee groupings suggested in the MCCRC's Dec. 15th meeting by Timur and Samantha. Capacity-wise, 2-4 subcommittees are probably what is realistic for this group.

One important factor to think about when creating subcommittees is grouping by related topics, which will likely reduce research and testimony duplication between subcommittees. Another factor to consider is spreading the MCCRC's top priorities or most research-intensive priorities across subcommittees to make sure that they get the attention the MCCRC wants them to receive.
